“ Dear Brian, friend, Shipmate, brother.

I first met you in 1988 on board ship. We found an immediate friendship. Though there were things like age and rank that separated us, I was always made to feel like an equal, and am very grateful for it.

When you called me to tell me of your diagnosis, so I didn't have to find out on FB, we talked about, and I planned to come see you. Through the ever distracting events of living my own life, I made the mistake of believing there was enough time. More time.... just time. That's something that becomes so precious, sweet time. Please forgive me, and even as I ask for it I know that you would have. My life is infinity better and richer for having known you. I am so grateful to have been able to share parts of this life. Farewell friend. Farewell my brother.
