“ Renee,

I remember the wonderful times we had with Guy. He was a true friend. I loved his stories, whether he was talking about his early days in the Italian neighborhood of Detroit, or the career he loved as a motorcycle cop in Detroit and his time in the radio room at Belle Isle, or his time in the military. Barb and I loved our lunches with you and Guy. He was a gentle soul. We will truly miss him. Heaven is happy today. Guy is home.

“ If you looked in the dictionary for the meaning of friend you would find Guy. He was part of my mother's life after she lost her husband, my father. My mom and dad knew Guy growing up in the "old neighborhood."

He was always there for her whethe it is was to go out to breakfast at the Orange Peel every Tues. or fish and chips on Friday at Jovan's. But more than that he was a endearing comfort for mom. It didn't matter if it was late at night or any hour. He would get in his car and show up on her doorstep to be by her side. It was never left unsaid how good he was to her.

My husband Tom and I enjoyed meeting Guy and Renee for a meal at one of Guy's favorite places. We also enjoyed looking at pictures he wanted to share with us.

Guy was a saint. Although we hate to lose our loved ones Guy fought many battles and he is now home with his dear wife, Mary.

My heartfelt condolences to the family.

“ Guy and his children treated my mother, Jean, like a member of their family. Sunday dinners at Renee's house was the highlight of her week. Arguing with Guy was also one of her favorite past-times, as well as feeding the squirrels at the cemetery (don't tell Resurrection!) I think she lived longer because of Guy and his family and I know she was happier with them in her life.
My deepest condolences to your family.
