“ I don't even know where to begin. Jill was one of the best friends I'd ever had in my entire life. I met Jill nearly 20 years ago at MOPS. I had a 3 month old and was pregnant again with my second child. I instantly connected with her and we became fast friends. Sadly a few years later my husband rejoined the military and we left Michigan. However, Jill and I never lost touch and our relationship continued to grow and we became like sisters. We talked about EVERYTHING. I could tell her anything and she was always there to listen. We were planning to meet somewhere half way this spring to hang out and just spend the weekend “venting” about life. Jill had the most giving and caring heart. She had a passion for the less fortunate and elderly. Many times she'd help my elderly father out for me because I lived out of state and he'd need his pills done or she'd take him to the doctor for me. My dad loved “Mrs. Jill” as he called her. When my uncle passed and I came to Michigan for the funeral Jill wanted to spend time with me so she came to the funeral home and spent the entire day with me there. It didn't matter what it was, if you needed Jill she was there. Jill loved Christmas and Easter. We both share a polish heritage and she taught me how to make her Grandmas pierogis, something I never got to learn from my own grandmother because she passed when I was younger. Many times when I'd come to town Jill and John would open their home to me and my family. She was always so hospitable. Jill and I shared the same deep faith and strong conservative political views. Jill was an amazing mom to her four children and went above and beyond to make sure they had all they needed and more. She was a loving wife to John and cared so deeply about him. Jill's passing has left a huge void in so many of our hearts and I know I will never be the same. I know she is in heaven with her Savior but I just don't understand why her took her from us so soon. I'll never understand. I love u with all my heart, Jill Hilary Bury DeLadurantaye.

“ I met John and Jill in college and they became dear friends! They were a package deal from the time I met them. Jill had a great sense of humor and extreme patience in dealing with our college shenanigans. When I look back at those days, these 2 wonderful people always come to mind. Living on opposite sides of the state I have kept up with Jill through social media platforms. I know she is a devoted mother, wife, and Christian. She is loved dearly and will be missed. God bless the family and receive my deepest sympathies.

“ Jill- we only hung out sporadically over the last few decades, but you always had such a warm and fun presence whenever we were all on Mackinac together. I've enjoyed getting to know you more through FB and seeing a glimpse into your life and your abundant love for your family, friends and God. Heaven gained a good angel with you and you will be missed.

“ Another angel taken way too early. I was fortunate to catch up with Jill a year ago when we met for lunch. Never in my wildest dreams did I imagine that this would be my last time visiting her. She loved people so, especially the elderly and I am thankful that she was in my mom's life. They are both up there now, singing with Him. ❤️ 🎹

“ I met Jill as a sophomore at Western. We were roommates. I was a pretty shy, introverted person and the social part of the college experience was a struggle for me. She helped draw me out of my shell with her outgoing, bubbly personality. While we lost track of each other after graduation, I still counted her one of my dear friends and the world was a brighter place with her in it. I took joy in seeing her great love for her family, friends and all humanity in her posts on Facebook. This world is a dimmer, less beautiful place because of her passing, but I also know that she knew the secret. That this world and all her adventures have only been the title page. Now she is beginning Chapter one of The Great Story which no one on earth has read: which goes on forever: in which every chapter is better than the one before (CS Lewis: The Last Battle). To Jill's friends and family, I can only offer my prayers of comfort for all of you as, together, we mourn the extinguishing of her beautiful flame in this world and await our reunion in the next.

“ I met John and Jill during one of the most important times of my life. They were the first two people I met in college and we had years of fun filled crazy times. They were always together. And became some of the best friends I have ever made. Though life circumstances put us at a distance, every time we got together the friendships picked up right where they left off. Jill had a big heart and made lots of people smile. I know John and their children were the most important thing in the world to her. She will be dearly missed. ❤️

“ I met Jill while working in a senior living facility. She had a passion for working with seniors and a natural talent with helping memory impaired individuals. Her heart was so full of love for those around her. She was a rock star at our senior community. After we had both moved on from our workplace, our brother/sister (I only have brothers and she has one sister) friendship blossomed and included her husband John and their four children. She shared her love for Polish food and cooking and included me on family dinners, holiday celebrations, and numerous outings and events. I felt I had known Jill my entire life. After having lost my mother to Alzheimer's a few years earlier, I had climbed into a shell and couldn't find a way out. Jill's patient and loving friendship drew me back out into the world. She was the breath of fresh air that I needed to regain faith in humanity and friendship. Her sudden loss is a horrific shock to family and friends. The indelible mark she left on our hearts and lives is forever and we look forward to the day she greets us with a smile and hug in Heaven. Her last text to me said, "I miss you." She died a few hours later. I miss you too my friend.

I was shocked to hear from my daughter that my cousin Jill had died, I have been disconnected from my family in recent years but I still have very fond memories of all the Christmas gatherings at Grandma Bury's house. I'm sure her family is having a hard time with this as I know she was a good mother and had a close relationship with her family. I will pray that god will ease their pain especially Uncle Clary's and Aunt Lee Ann no parent should ever have to lose a child. God has called many of us home this year and I know he has a special place for Jill.
