“Roseline Fodera, greeted and guided to eternity with old friends and forever family in only final moments, with smiles and laughter because she would return to her safe haven. A long time to come for her lovely radiant spirit to shine through and light up the room once again. The lessons learned, obstacles prevailed, and wisdom dispersed throughout Roseline’s life and the joy planted, and sprouted will be to remember. As for the family started and accomplished there on Earth, her greatest legacy. In valuable time, having met a heart filled, passionate man, destined to John and in marriage together became Fodera. In love together completed 4 kids blessed by the Lord our God, only to lead to all beautiful grandchildren. This we call family. On February 4th, you Roseline were called and reconciled home. Your brief phase of the Earth is over, your glory was completing this life with honor in spirit and leaving a little bit of yourself behind for all to remember, irreplaceable family and through them will bring your reputation to life for all to remember. Roseline’s boundless phase of unity, praise, and adulation has already begun. The absolute shell of her spirit has harnessed her divine energy long enough and it is time to continue on where called. Current potential awaits with a new life to come. Blessed be the soul of Roseline Fodera now and forever. May the family in Christ live on to carry the boundless love of Rose and John out in full, may her name and echo be kept sacred while passing on to her next phase in life. Roseline Fodera kept in the arms of the Lord, may her Guardian Angel return home and be rewarded by the Father.”

“Grandma, you were truly another mother to me. I've had some of the best memories growing up with you and grandpa. Every Sunday when I was little we used to come over and you would always make dinner for the entire family, and spend every moment with us talking and laughing until we went home. You would even watch me when I would come home sick from school sometimes. When you are born into this world you are welcomed with open arms into a family, in the arms of parents that love you. There is no picking and choosing your family but I have been blessed to have been born in the family that GOD has given me because there is truly no family like the one I got, and GOD gave me you grandma, he put me in your family and I have been blessed since the first day. Grandma for the last 9 years you have welcomed my family and I into your home during hard times and not a lot of people in this world would have provided what you had for my family. We were welcomed into a loving home and you never once expected anything in return or ever made us feel bad about it. There was nothing you didn't do, you always wanted to get things done and you were always moving haha you never sat still. You liked everything clean and if it wasn't you would make sure to finish the task right away. You loved to play cards, we would always play cards almost everyday and your favorite games were Pinochle, Gin 13, and Mille Bornes. Ahh grandma we've had such great memories especially these last years living together, and I could not have ever asked for a better grandma. You will always remain everything to us. The day you returned back to your real home was one of the hardest days to accept because it all happened so fast, you graduated to Heaven and are with the Lord where it all started, the one that designed you and was with you all throughout life, and he had drawn you back to him and the rest of your family were you will be filled and surrounded with peace and love for all eternity. Grandma we've had some of the best memories together and I will always love you and never forget you for as long as I live. You are truly something special and will be greatly missed. I'll never forget your last day home you were in your bedroom laying on your recliner. I had just woken up and walked to the back room to where you looked at me and waved with a smile on your face, and the very last thing you said to me was "Vince, I was just thinking about you." Those words have been in my heart ever since grandma. You and grandpa always had a loving heart and always did for others and always cared for everyone especially family and now you both are reunited again at last with the rest of your family, and I know Jesus showed you around Heaven already and what mansion you'd be staying in with grandpa up there. No matter how much different this life will be, I know you and grandpa will always be around keeping us all in check and watching over us and you will forever be in our hearts never to be forgotten. Rest In Peace Grandma. I love you and miss you. 💜

“ Mom, your story was not suppose to end like this. There was so much more to be written. To say you are great Lady doesn't do you justice. Your love and understanding is second to none. Thank you for the life lessons of family, charity and integrity you bestowed upon me and my children. I will forever be in your debt. When you left to take your spot in heaven, the earth lost a true light. I will look forward to your guidance from above and hope to make you proud.

Eternally in your debt Love your son John
