“ To our Sweet Robin....so, so many years ago you fell in love with Roger, and at the same time we fell in love with you. It all was meant to be...so many memories to cherish. Your wedding reception at the house...all our Perdido vacations...bingo at the Bama...happy hour at Cobalt...then off to the Bama again to listen to Rhonda...dinner at Shipps...beach walks when able and just sitting on the beach when not. Always laughing...always feeling loved. May the sun always shine softly upon your beautiful face, may you always feel the warmth of a comforting hug, may you always know how much you are loved and how much you made others feel loved. Until we meet again, spread your angel wings, but remember to save us a chair at the beach. We love you, Robin. 🙏

“ Robin, These are some of the things I'm going to miss: You coming over on Saturdays for the "senior special" dinners, going to the casino, Florida vacations, and what became our annual Biloxi trips; our talks about weight watchers and how much we lost or gained as we chowed down on dessert and sometimes even had seconds; how you would laugh and shake your head every year at all my yard art (yet I know you secretly loved it!); sitting in the Florida condo and having a glass of wine in the evening ... o.k., maybe two glasses ... o.k., so it was the whole bottle! I'm so glad I drove over to your house about a week before you went in the hospital. Even though I didn't come inside, I'm so glad I got to wave to you from the front porch, exchange a few words and send a big hug and kisses across the living room. It was a brief visit, but I felt the love. Like you asked me a few months ago, I promise you that I'll check in on Roger and make sure he's o.k. Maybe he'll come over for the "senior specials"! You weren't a sister-in-law Robin, you were my sister. Hugs and kisses again, but instead of across the room, these are being sent across the sky and up to you in heaven. I love you.

“ Robin and I had a taste for Chocolate Covered Marshmallow treats like Santa Claus at Christmas and Easter eggs and any other occasion. Sometimes we secretly raced to see who could buy them first.
