“ I met Brian when he moved to California 20+ years ago and we quickly bonded over the Red Wings (and beer). Soon after I met David who was an easy friend with a great, often quirky, sense of humor. It was easy to see his relation to, and bond with Brian. I shared a lot fun, youthful times with these guys involving pool tables, poker tables, beer "tastings," pretty rambunctious trips to New Orleans and Las Vegas, many to the Anaheim Pond, and I got to call Dave my netminder for a few memorable seasons of roller hockey in the beer league. I am trying my best to keep all of these moments seeing David's grin in mind while going through this time of grief. Lauren and I send our love and condolences to all of David's family and friends.

“ I only ever got to meet David once and it was near the end but he has been in my heart for several years. David had a community of men who prayed regularly for him and the whole family and we'll continue to pray that you all can find peace with his passing so soon and can find strength to bear the uncertainty of this life and it's vale of tears with grace. God Bless.

“ In 1982, as Ellen Grems and I exchanged vows, David, a tender toddler of 2 or 3, had already become an integral part of our lives. Alongside his elder brothers Brian and Brad, who held the title of my nephews, they graced our wedding in Virginia, despite their home being in Michigan. Despite the geographical distance, our connection thrived through regular holiday visits and summer gatherings in Virginia, always filled with laughter and affection.

As the years swiftly passed, following Brad and Lisa's union in 2003, Brian made the move to San Diego, soon followed by David. My frequent business trips to the city provided ample opportunities for joyful reunions. Bonding over a shared appreciation for beer, our get-togethers often revolved around exploring new breweries and enjoying hearty meals.

One particular adventure remains etched vividly in my memory—a coastal escapade with David and Brian. Our excursion to ocean cliffs ended with an unexpected dousing by a mammoth wave, leaving us in fits of laughter as our cell phones succumbed to the deluge, save for David's resilient device, which soldiered on for a few more days. David's kindness extended to lending me dry clothes while we waited for our laundry, accompanied by a few refreshing beverages, of course. Despite the expense incurred in replacing our waterlogged phones, the enduring memory remains a cherished testament to our camaraderie and joy.

As time pressed onward, David found his life companion in Jacqueline, seamlessly integrating her into our extended family. The irresistible allure of San Diego prompted my wife and me to settle in Oceanside, where we joyfully welcomed Dave, Jacqueline, Brian, and Erica as regular attendees at our BBQs and festive gatherings. Adapting to "Dave time," with his habitual tardiness, became second nature to us.

David's gentle nature and captivating conversations endeared him to all who crossed his path. His profound affection for animals mirrored the expansiveness of his heart, leaving an indelible impression on those fortunate enough to know him. His absence is keenly felt, serving as a poignant reminder of the void left by his departure.
