“ My Memories of Dad (verses from The Way We Were by Barbara Streisand) Memories of dad are varied and full of emotions... memories light the corners of my mind Cuddling up in his lap as his little girl, I always felt his love and pride. Always his protective glance and his laugh scattered pictures of the smiles we left behind ..a day in the water at the beach, doing summersaults in the water and giggling with dad, his grandchildren in his arms and in his heart and eyes, always can it be that it was all so simple then making wine in the basement, fruit flies all over the crates of grapes...the crushing of grapes, the barrels being filled year after year, wine on the table that was made by my dads hands memories may be beautiful and yet, whats too painful to remember we simply choose to forget Yes, there are some of those, too. When a boy showed up on my front porch and my dad chased him away and told him to never come back, a choice I made which brought him pain and he lost that glow of pride for awhile so its the laughter we will remember dancing with him at our wedding, Christmas with family and my dad singing old Italian Christmas songs, how his face lit up whenever I entered the room, when he hung with his old Italian buddies when we were in Italy, the smiles on their faces were untouchable... I will never forget the way we were, Dad! Love Always, Marie
