“ John will always hold a place in my heart. There were so many kind facets to him. I remember him going to the hospital with a neighbor who had a stroke and stayed with him for as long as he needed. He had a routine every day that he seldom veered from. Daniel was his everything. John got along with everyone and had quick wit that never failed to make me laugh. As much fun as we had together we also had some serious talks too. John was intelligent and could be introspective too. He loved his sister's and brothers very much. He loved to talk about how his mother loved Him and how his father served in the church. All of our neighbors loved him and we often had impromptu picnics behind our building in which John would keep us all entertained. Even when I moved out of state we kept in touch. He meant a great deal to me. I know I'll see him in heaven again. Sweet, John may you rest in peace in the loving arms of our Savior Jesus.

“ I just saw this and I have no idea what made me Google his name but I think I was just reflecting on the past.

What John was to me was a connection to a family I didn't have. My dad was an agnostic in a deeply Catholic community and my mother committed suicide. To say I was a black sheep would be an understatement but John and his family never made me feel that way.

They made me see the faith was real and that God doesn't think the way the world does.

We would talk about the Red Wings and Lions and anything. He had a way of putting you at ease and he judged no one. I think that may be the greatest thing any of us can do in our lifetime. I will miss John Paul.

“He was more than my baby bro. He was my BFF. I visited him 2 wks. ago for several hours and we reminisced about the old neighborhood and so many of our friends & neighbors and local businesses. The laughter was nonstop. Of course his lasting legacy and pride & joy of his existence was his son Daniel. RIP sweet,gentle, & loving soul. My love for you is forever!”

“I had the privilege of working with John for many years. I will never forget his easy going personality, friendly laughter and ability to literally talk to anyone for hours on end. Sitting here at my desk on a work day, heart broken with the news, someone else in doing his job today, but John can't be replaced. Our last conversation (and most conversation) was about how well his son Daniel was doing. He was so proud. John will be missed.”

“I am very sorry for the loss to family and friends . I went to grade school with John. He had a great sense of humor. He would even make the nuns laugh sometimes ! I often thought of him through the years. So sad he was taken with so much more life to live. Very sorry for your loss. Kathy McGraw Willhite”

“John's quick wit often got him in trouble at St Hyacinth's grade school. He often said, in order to be heard in his family of ten siblings, he had to talk loud. Rest In Peace John.”
