“ "Julio was my "big city" cousin. Every summer he and his sisters would come to rural Illinois to visit. He was 2 years older and I learned from him. I regret we did not spend more time together as we grew older. I think we would have had as much fun as we did when we were children."

“I had the pleasure of meeting Julio back in September. Only have knowing him since then, I learned a lot. He was a great man, someone who was always there for the people that he cared about. He was someone that could light up a room as soon as he walked through the doors. His sense of humor was one in a million; there was never a conversation where I wasn't laughing. I gathered all that in the short 8 months of knowing him, I can't imagine how much more i would have learned from this great man, if I had gotten to know him even longer! He will be greatly missed but I can promise he will never be forgotten!”
