“ Ryan, my sweetheart, my babe, my Tommy pickles,

There isn't a single day that has passed where I don't feel the weight of you not being here with me. I'm not going to pretend I'm okay... because I'm not. I'm upset that I have to live this life without you beside me, without your voice, your laugh, your hugs, your positivity, I even miss your OCD 🧠🟡♀️. It just doesn't feel fair that you left without me.

However, even in the sadness, I hold onto the thought of the day I get to see you again. The day I get to my arms around you, kiss you, yell at you for leaving me too soon, and then finally feel whole again. That moment is what has been keeping me going, because I know you would want nothing else for me, your family, or any one of your loved ones and friends.

I catch myself smiling through tears because of you. All the jokes we shared, the way we could make each other laugh over the smallest things—they live in my mind every day. They pop into my head when I least expect it, and somehow, it feels like you're right there with me, still making me laugh, still loving me the way only you could.

Please keep watching over all of us. Keep me strong when I feel like I'm breaking. I need you in ways I won't ever be able to explain to anyone, and I hope somehow you can still reach me, still guide me, still remind me I'm not alone.

I will love you forever. That will never change—not in this life, not in the next, not ever. And I know your family and I... we're all holding onto the same hope—that one day, we'll be together again, meeting you at those golden gates, where there are no more goodbyes.

Until then, my love...

Together Forever. ❤️

“ We loved to walk everywhere and do summer activities together. We went kayaking and had sooooo much fun! I remember one time we rode around, came home and grilled steaks at your dads and tanned on the lake and you and your dad both made me feel like family. And when you came and helped my mom move and came to my aunts and met the puppy that looked just like your pup when she was young, you took that super ugly pic of me and her lol! It was just a great time. And you, Jess and I were so close during our recovery journey years ago and we have been close since. We were always there for each other whenever we needed to talk. You are just such a supportive and loving man, and the most empathetic person I've ever met. You knew how to make complete strangers feel included even if it was a 10 second interaction and you'd never see them again. I'm just so sad you're gone. You were supposed to come and see my new place and we were to reminisce about our new lives and it's too late now. Sometimes I think if you came to see me before you passed then you'd still be here. I love you Ry, so much!!!!

“ I remember when Ryan was working on my boat and Jayden was fishing off the dock. Jayden caught his first fish and it freaked him out from flopping around. Ryan was right there to show Jayden it was ok.
Awsome to witness that experience.

“ Ryan - you were one heck of a man that took better care of my daughter than I ever could! I can't thank you enough for being in her life. You were both so good for each other. It breaks my heart to see how much she misses you. Please continue to watch over her / show her signs that you are with her and just wait till you can have your FOREVER TOGETHER. Rest easy Ryan - Love Patty

“ Ryan you were one of my first friends I ever made back in Headstart when we were 4 years old. You were a super fun person to be around, you kind of reminded me of a mix of Kevin McAllister from Home Alone and Bart Simpson sprinkled with a little bit of Travis Pastrana and Bam Margera. Had a blast growing up with you man, I pray for your family and hope you are in a better place.

“ Ryan, im glad we reconnected in the past few years and im thankful for all the random run ins like my 21st birthday or the house party I threw that you came to with a mutual friend(not knowing it was my house). It was always great to see you and you always were funny no matter what was going on. I wish we it hadnt been so hard to keep in touch. Please watch over your family. They miss you so much. Rest easy.

“ Ryan,, my baby brother.. where do I begin!? You were my first friend and my best friend. We learned about life together. Your nephews will miss you dearly and your niece will definitely know who you are, pinky promise. You're finally at peace and I have to accept that. Life doesn't make sense and it probably never will. Watch over your loved ones and keep giving us signs. This isn't goodbye, I'll see you soon☐
